Once upon a time a fat frog lived in a small pond. He could swim across the pond easily and he knew everything in it. Nothing was bigger than him there. When he sang, the *water-snails listened to him politely. When he swam, the water-beetles always followed after him. He was happy living there.

One day, a pretty butterfly came and said to him, “You’re a very fine frog. But why don’t you live in a bigger pond? You’ll meet a lot of other frogs, and there are kind fish there. Living in a large pond is wonderful. Come with me!” The fat frog followed the butterfly to the large pond.

While he was living in the large pond, he was not happy. The water-snails weren’t polite to him and the fish weren’t kind at all. He felt lonely. He sat on a leaf singing sadly and said to himself, “I don’t like living here. I’ll go back to the small pond tomorrow.” Then suddenly, a hungry big bird flew down and had him for supper.
