18 Question a. Man: Could you show me this sweater in my size?

Woman: Certainly. What is your size?

Man: I'm not really sure. Could you measure me?

Woman: No problem. Just a moment. I'll bring a tape measure.

Question: What does the man ask the woman to do?

Question b. Man: What time does the next long-distance bus for Tokyo leave?

Woman: The next one leaves at 4:30 p.m. from gate two.

They leave every hour from the same bus stop.

Man: I haven't booked yet. Are there any seats available?

Woman: I'm sorry, it's already full. You can book a seat on the next one.

Question: What will the man probably do?

20 Question c. Man: What's your new apartment like?

Woman: I like it. It's not close to the station but it's in a quiet area.

Man: How big is it?

Woman: Compared to my old apartment, it's much smaller, but it gets a lot of sunshine.

Question: What is the woman's new apartment like?

21 Question d. Man : Lakeside Hotel, may I help you?

Woman: Do you have a room available for three nights from tomorrow?

Man: I'll have a look for you.

Woman: Thank you.

Question: What will the man do next?

Question e. Man: Is everything OK in your office? How is Natalie, the new staff member?

Woman: To be honest, she isn't lazy, but she could be more organized.

Man: So, do you mean she is slow to do the work?

 $\label{thm:work better, she would be great.} Woman: If she planned her work better, she would be great.$

Question: What does the woman think about Natalie?

Every country has its traditional special days. In early February, in Japan, people throw beans around their houses while praying for family happiness.

Similarly, Pancake Day is a special day for British people. Every year, the day falls on a Tuesday between February 3rd and March 9th. In 2020, the day falls on February 25th. Originally, for religious reasons, people would stop eating some foods such as eggs and butter, so cooking pancakes was a good way to use up all that food. Traditional British pancakes are thin compared to American pancakes. British people usually put lemon juice and sugar on top. As a special event on that day, pancake races are held across the country. In the most famous pancake race in Britain, each runner has to keep throwing and catching a pancake in a frying pan.

29 35

Miho: Japan has become quite international, hasn't it?

David: What makes you say that? I still have problems when trying to use English in Japan, so I don't think so.

Miho: Well, take a look around. You'll see all sorts of foreign restaurants such as Italian, Indian, Chinese, and Mexican.

David: Yeah, I guess you're right. Back home in England, you don't see so many foreign restaurants as you do here, unless you're in a big town.

Miho: Festivals and events that have their roots in foreign countries are also gaining popularity in Japan.

David: I know. Halloween is getting really big here and some young people wearing strange clothes caused a lot of problems in Shibuya last year.

Miho: It's funny, but we tend to enjoy such festivals without thinking about the meaning behind them.

David: Yeah, Halloween was originally an event to celebrate the harvest and drive away bad spirits. However, here it's more like a costume festival.

Miho: Also, on Valentine's Day, women generally give chocolate to men in Japan. It's supposed to be a day for couples, not a day for chocolate.

David: That's right. We have a strange mix of international cultures here.

Miho: We do, indeed. By the way, are you getting hungry?

David: Yeah, let's try the new hamburger shop today because we had Indian food yesterday.

次に問いの文を読みます。

30/36 Question a. Why does Miho think Japan is international?

3137 Question b. How did David reply when Miho said Japan was international?

Question c. According to David, where do you normally find many foreign restaurants in England?

(1題ごとに10秒休止)

3339 Question d. What was one reason behind the original Halloween festival?

Beth: Hi, Jiro. Would you like to walk to the university with me?

Jiro: Well, it takes more than 20 minutes if we walk there. I'd rather take a bus. Beth: I'm afraid the bus service has been canceled because of the town festival.

Jiro: OK. It looks like we have to walk then.

Beth: Lately, I've been trying to walk at least three hours a week.

Jiro: Why? Are you trying to lose weight?

Beth: No, it's more because I want to feel good. I don't like the idea of eating less to stay fit.

Jiro: I agree. I used to be very careful about the amount of food I ate. I gave it up because it wasn't fun at all.

Beth: I know. I want to eat what I want. Let's walk faster to make ourselves hungry.

Jiro: Good idea. Do you know they've started selling hamburgers at the student restaurant?
