Do you often go to the library? What do you do there? Many people go there to read, borrow books, and to study. Over the past 20 years, many changes have taken place in libraries.

First of all, libraries now have computers for people to use. Usually, it doesn't cost anything to use a computer to study. Second, there are fewer records, cassette tapes, and video tapes. CDs and DVDs have taken their place. Third, many libraries now let you check out your books with a computer. Finally, libraries have become more social than they were in the past. They are now places where people come to discuss ideas, learn painting, study with friends, or join a hobby group. Libraries also have a children's area where they can enjoy services—for example, picture books are read to children.

As our world changes and *technology gets better, libraries also continue to change to meet the needs of the people who use them.

*technology : 科学技術

- a. For about 20 years, libraries { ① have not changed at all.
② have changed in many ways.
③ have changed places.

- b. To use a computer in most libraries, { ① you need a CD or a DVD.
② you have to pay some money.
③ you don't need any money.

c. In modern libraries, { ① computers play an important part.
② more video tapes are kept than before.
③ CDs and DVDs must not be borrowed.

d. Some people go to libraries to borrow books,

others go there { ① to enjoy recording.
② to buy social services.
③ to learn painting.

e. Libraries { ① never change to meet people's needs.
② keep on changing for their users.
③ make technology much better.
